A Guide to Marquee Flooring

MARQUEE FLOORING

The flooring is the most important part of any marquee. Just like in a building, the flooring cannot slope or be uneven. All furniture, glasses and guests are affected by a level surface or a lack of. We have the flooring for most sites and budgets.

Ground condition	Floor Type
Level, very slight slope	All flooring types
Medium slope	Suspended steel wooden flooring
Uneaven ground	Suspended steel wooden flooring

Pine wooden flooring

Our Pine wooden flooring is a direct lay type of flooring, meaning it is set straight on the ground and levelled out with packers.

Pine is a step up from our plywood flooring while not needing carpet, its perfect for any upscale event.

Fully natural pine flooring is renewable. each board sanded and varnished every season to keep them looking newer for longer. Seen on the right, our winter is mainly used for maintenance on our over 1000 flooring boards for your events to look great!

Steel sub base floor

Our highest quality finish floor consists of a steel frame first levelled out with packers and finished with varnished wood.

This forms a solid base for any type of events, best for higher budget events where placing the marquee on uneven ground is not optional or giving the best possible finish.

Flooring Guide

- Perfect for uneven sites
- Kerbs & undulations are levelled out
- High quality finish
- No further covering necessary but compatible with carpet
- Ramp access available

Steel sub base floor - Kelburn Castle Wedding

The Event
Wedding @ Kelburn Castle
We were approached by a couple wanting to expand the space at their chosen venue, Kelburn Castle.

The ground challenge
The ground sloped gradually away from the venue, requiring a level platform that connected with the existing building.

Solution
We installed a steel sub-frame and timber floor, setting the finished floor level to align with the venue doors.

Access & Finish
A large entrance ramp accommodated the raised floor height, while the varnished timber provided an attractive finish for the celebration.
